Purchased tires and had tire pressure sensor repair. 2019 Volkswagen Golf Alltrack TSI SE review I owned a C240 AWD Benz wagon. It was falling apart but it was from MN and snow does that. This car is its counterpart in the sense that it is set up the same. I love the 4cyl turbo, as it really goes, and the AWD is perfect to get out when it snows. It's RED and I love it. I really think this car is the best in AWD, pep, and function. View all 32 photos 1/32 Volkswagen Certified 14,259 mi. $30,932 $986 price drop Estimated monthly payment of . I strongly recommend Alex at Larry Roesch Volkswagen. 2019 Volkswagen Golf Alltrack TSI S review In 2019 I was looking to replace my Subaru with a sporty wagon which offered a more engaging driving experience and found that the Alltrack had been on the market for 3 years. Strange that I hadn't seen any advertising or marketing of any sort for it. Called up my local VW dealer and scheduled a test drive. Drove both a DSG SEL Alltrack and a 4motion Sportwagen. I wasn't really sold on either. It perhaps had something to do with the low profile tires on each vehicle in hindsight, but I did like the handling, acceleration, smaller and thusly more maneuverable size vs the bloated Outback. It just had too much road feel. I went home sort of confused since I expected to fall in love with the Alltrack. A month went by and then I saw a green/brown S trim Alltrack available at another dealer. I was really only into the aesthetics since the styling is perfect on these cars imo and green is my favorite color on vehicles so I thought what the heck why not try this one..maybe they're all different. So I drove down and checked it out. Gave it a drive around Vancouver and a quick jaunt at 55mph on I-5 and it was exactly what I was looking for. Engaging, but not a harsh ride like the SEL and Sportwagen. I mentioned the tire size before - the S trim has 17 inch wheels, which seem to feel much more comfortable on this vehicle. The SEL had 18 inch low profiles. I don't know, it's the only difference I can find in terms of the power and drivetrain from the other wagons I drove. Anyhow, traded in my Outback immediately and drove home in the Alltrack. Got it for $23.8k and the dealer threw in a free entended warranty. I doubt I'll ever use it, but they didn't have to do that so I appreciate it. I have 30k miles on it right now and have driven it from Olympia, WA to Glacier Park and back 4 times, taken it to Minnesota and back twice and to Portland and Seaside/Cannon Beach a few times. I have had absolutely zero issues with the vehicle and I cannot be happier with it. I've since replaced the tires with a set of Nokian WRG4s and moved to northern Minnesota. The pairing of the Nokians and the Alltrack's 4motion system has been amazing in the winter here. I cannot complain about anything with this car beyond the poor legroom in the rear passenger seats and the odd placement of the USB port in the center console. This was the last of the wagons in the USA for the foreseeable future and I don't plan on parting with mine unless I'm forced to, in which case I'll find a used one. Sure it's no speed demon like a Audi SQ5 or handles like a GTI but for the 90% of the time this car is perfect. Good engine, the 1.8T is just enough for everyday use. Handling is better than most SUV. Cargo space even more than an SQ5. Fuel economy is acceptable at 25mpg in the city. Overall looks with the roof rails, cladding and wheels makes for a really nice, very well equipped Volkswagen. One day this will be another classic VW. The process started online with Sara, and the communication was fast with no beating around the bush. Ryan and Ken were a pleasure to deal with when buying the car, didn't play games, and it was the best car buying process we've ever dealt with. They honored their original pricing quotes and gave a fair trade value. I will recommend to anyone in the VW market or looking for a used vehicle. Thanks for such a smooth transaction! 2019 Volkswagen Golf Alltrack TSI SEL review This is a great car. I owned a 2017 and when I learned that VW wouldn't be offering the Alltrack in 2021 I traded in the 2017 and bought a 2019. When the Alltrack first came out, the auto press praised it as a "Subaru beater," based on its features and performance. Apparently, VW dropped the Alltrack from its line due to low sales numbers. No wonder - VW never promoted the Alltrack, never educating the consumer on how much better a car it is compared to its Subaru counterpart.
